

Crucifixion-Resurrection Timeline: Wednesday Crucifixion

The grave was found empty just before dawn on the first day of the week (equivalent to Sunday morning). If the resurrection was after sundown or into the early evening of the first day of the week (equivalent to Saturday evening), then Saturday night could not be counted in the three days and three nights (Matthew 12:40). The crucifixion would have been on Wednesday afternoon. The three nights would have been Wednesday night, Thursday night and Friday night. *Matthew 27:5

Crucifixion-Resurrection Timeline: Thursday Crucifixion

The grave was found empty just before dawn on the first day of the week (equivalent to Sunday morning). If the resurrection was just before dawn on the first day of the week, then Saturday night could be counted in the three days and three nights (Matthew 12:40). In order to get three days and three nights, the crucifixion would have been on Thursday afternoon. The three nights would have been Thursday night, Friday night and Saturday night. *Matthew 27:45
